Chancellor's Update

The Stakes Couldn't Be Higher

About two years ago many events unusual in the United States of America were beginning to take place. College graduates were unable to begin careers in their fields of study, if they found jobs at all. Many high school graduates were also unemployed. Entrepreneurs found it difficult to start a business, while existing business owners were shutting their businesses due to crushing government regulations. Millions of people found themselves unemployed because their jobs had moved overseas. Suddenly thousands of people were crossing the Mexican Border without immigration permission, while the Border Patrol was told to 'stand down'. Then followed the influx of the refugees. Who was giving the order that thousands of migrants and refugees could enter this country without prior approval of Congress or the governors and legislatures of the states? Attacks on religious freedom and on other rights guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution were becoming commonplace. Indexes regarding various types of freedom, published by specialized think tanks, were indicating that the United States, instead of being in the top three countries, was not even in the top ten!

What's been going on? Did these events just happen with unexpected results? Were the American people asleep while all these events were slowly happening? Or were well-positioned people plotting behind the backs of the American people? Have we been looking at symptoms rather than at the root cause? Did anyone sense what was going on and try unsuccessfully to warn the American people?

In 1968 Curtis B. Dall, a person of military background, who had a Wall Street background and a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, wrote a book entitled My Exploited Father-in-Law (Franklin Delano Roosevelt). After the failure of the League of Nations following World War I, the concept of a global United Nations began to take shape. To train men for various operations and to suitably mold their ideological, political, financial, military and educational objectives, the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) in the U.S.A. and the Royal Institute of International Affairs in England were established in 1921. The Rockefeller Family Foundation, bankers and internationalists initiated the process of setting up to include people of all faiths and atheists. Bolshevism, followed by communism, was the initial phase of the One World Revolutionary takeover promoted as peace. Lenin was reported to have said, "The First World War gave us Russia while the Second World War will hand Europe to us." Nazism and communism removed most of the crown heads and exterminated most of the natural aristocracies of Europe. The next step planned was to use the United Nations to bring about a one-World Super Government. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin met at Teheran and at Yalta to set up plans for an enduring world peace. The U. N. Charter provided a greater role for Russia than for the United States. The United States ratified the United Nations Treaty under false assurance that the sole purpose of the treaty was peace and that U.S. sovereignty, the Constitution and the flag would remain inviolate. However, since Article Six of the U.S. Constitution states: "All treaties made...under the authority of the United States shall be the supreme law of the land", the United States is required to follow the dictates of the United Nations. Mr. Dall regretfully described U. N. Wars. "When the U.N. Soldier goes forth to fight under C.F.R. direction, he usually attacks and uproots Anti-Communists, the supporters and advocates of real peace. The unstated objective of the U.N. Soldier however is to enable C.F.R. sponsors of the U. N. to acquire, directly or obliquely, for their banking over-lords and friends, vast new areas rich in natural resources. Thereupon, they inject a new political “democratic” government; promptly to establish a new controlled monetary system, of course, and then proceed to set in motion plans to exploit and market those natural resources. In effect, it is well organized plundering of numerous underprivileged nations on the grand scale, with you and me as misinformed Americans, paying for most of the cost of acquiring those new markets and profits for the top proprietors of the U.N.”

“Let us not fool ourselves. The wealth, freedom and liberty of the American people are being stolen and steadily nibbled away... We have also been goaded into trying to run the affairs of other nations which yields a fine profit for the world money powers who are in-the-know on credits and markets. Whether you realize it or not, that has all been planned for you in just that way... False images and “managed news”, however, will soon lead to the destruction of a free people, if we allow it. “We” means you and me. It is for you, primarily, that this book has been written.”

In 1969 Phoebe Courtney wrote a book entitled Beware Sensitivity Training! to learn more about the newest fad in schools and corporations. Her investigation led her to the formation of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. The first project for the U.N. was a constitution for the World Health Organization, (WHO) whose purpose is to foster activities in the field of mental health, especially those affecting the harmony of human relations. The first director-general of WHO, G. Brock Chisolm, a Canadian psychiatrist, said, “We are all now, perforce, citizens of the world, whether we are sufficiently mature adequately to carry that responsibility or not. We have swallowed all manner of poisonous certainties fed us by our parents, our Sunday and day school teachers, our politicians, our priests, our newspapers and others with a vested interest in controlling us ... The re-interpretation and eventually eradication of the concept of right and wrong ... has been the basis of child training... If the race is to be freed from its crippling burden of good and evil it must be psychiatrists who take the original responsibility... There is something to be said for... gently putting aside the mistaken old ways of our elders... If it cannot be done gently, it may have to be done roughly or even violently.”

In 1948 WHO held an International Congress on Mental Health, which issued a statement, “Principles of mental health cannot be successfully furthered in any society unless there is progressive acceptance of the concept of world citizenship... This concept implies loyalty to the whole of mankind. Programs for social change to be effective require the joint efforts of psychiatrists and social scientists working in cooperation with statesmen, administrators, and others in positions of responsibility.”

In 1946 UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) said in a Conference report, “The Executive Secretary’s report gives us the blueprints for the development of what one may call a world brain, a world mind, or a world culture, which alone can be the basis of a world authority or a world government.”

In 1949 UNESCO published a series of booklets for teachers. Two quotations from the series follow. “As we have pointed out, it is frequently the family that infects the child with extreme nationalism. The school should therefore use the means described earlier to combat family attitudes....” “The kindergarten or infant school has a significant part to play in the child’s education. Not only can it correct many of the errors of home training, but it can also prepare the child for... membership in the world society.”

In 1987 ABC TV presented a mini-series of a futuristic view of the United States, named Amerika, after a bloodless coup engineered by the Soviet Union. 1988 was to have been the last free election in the United States. Ten years after the coup the American people were demoralized. Real leaders, including the most recent President, and patriots were placed in prison camps, and then released as rehabilitated. A UN peacekeeping force was occupying the United States. Massive unemployment was causing many men to leave for unknown prospects in the Soviet Union. In the meantime dissenting Americans were sent to exile camps and were forbidden to communicate with fellow citizens. The Soviet Union decreed that the U.S. must cease to exist as a nation. Thus followed the execution of the members of the House and Senate. The arrogant ex-wife of the former presidential candidate was appointed a magistrate. At the end of the series a child, the son of that candidate and his ex-wife, gave a speech to describe the new condition of Amerika. He spoke of a new voice for a new age. Thinking that America was a good country was a lie. Amerika was now joined with its Soviet brothers in the world of socialist brotherhood in jobs, schools and equality. "All who resist will be CRUSHED." Many early watchers of this mini-series stopped watching because it was boring. Others who watched the full series considered it too long and unrealistic. With President Reagan still in the White House, others just considered it as no immediate threat.

In 1979 billionaire George Soros founded the Open Society Foundation, which works to build vibrant and tolerant societies whose governments are accountable and open to participation of all people. It funds many organizations, usually liberal and supportive of the Democrat Party. Recipients include Catholics for Choice and MoveOn.org. He also works with the Group of 77, another enterprise of the United Nations, founded in 1964, and which now includes 134 countries. With permanent chapters in seven cities, which host major agencies of the U. N., the Group promotes economic and technical cooperation among developing countries. Recently he stated that the "refugee crisis means new opportunities to influence immigration policies on a global scale." His Foundation would seek to change policies, rules and regulations that govern migration.

On April 23, 2015 former Secretary of State and Presidential candidate, Hillary Clinton in speaking about policies for the future said, "Religious beliefs will have to be changed." She has also endorsed the 2016 report of 300 pages from the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. "The phrases 'religious liberty' and 'religious freedom' will stand for nothing except hypocrisy so long as they remain code words for discrimination, intolerance, racism, sexism, homophobia, Islamophobia."

On May 19, 2016 U.N. Secretary-General Ban-Ki-moon spoke to graduates of Marymount Manhattan College in New York City. After reminding them that this large world is now small due to interconnection, he urged them not to lose sight of others or other places in the world. "Therefore, at this time, the national boundaries do not mean much to all of us. Forget about all these national boundaries and have a greater global vision. Be a global citizen."

Several times in the past few months President Obama and Candidate Hillary Clinton in responding to opponents of executive actions or policies that are contrary to the U.S. Constitution or established law, have stated, "That's not who we are." Since American citizens know who they are, what is their vision of who we are? Based on studying what has gone on behind our backs, this election is about whether or not we remain free citizens of the United States of America as set forth by our Founding Fathers, or if we become simply serfs or citizens of the One-World Government, who reside in the northern hemisphere.
